Little Rock's four public high school buildings can be leased for use as private, segregated institutions.

Federal Dist. Judge John E. Miller of Arkansas on Sept. 24 refused to rule on the leasing plan. He held that he did not have the jurisdiction to do so that it must be ruled on by a three-judge court.

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People carried its appeal to the appellate court here after a temporary restraining order was issued in Omaha.

Nine days ago the appellate court extended the order and told lawyers for the NAACP, the U.S. Justice Department and the school board to be before the court today to argue the case on its merits.

The Justice Department attorneys entered the case as friends of the court. But Tuesday's brief, filed by Richard C. Butler, a school board attorney, contended that the Justice Department actually was taking the position of the NAACP.

The brief said the Little Rock Private School Corp., the group trying to lease the school buildings, should be classified as an indispensable party to the action.

Also, the brief claimed, Judge Miller's court should be represented.

There were a number of forms today's hearing could take, including

Dr. T. J. Haney, president of the Little Rock Private School Corp., said last night the amount might be revealed "when we announce the rest of our plans, probably the latter part of this week."

The private school corporation is hunting teachers and buildings for classrooms.

An aide to Faubus said the governor might shed some light on private school plan developments in a televised speech tomorrow night.

Last week Faubus officially appealed for public donations to the private school group. Thousands of letters were mailed from his office.

No plans have been made for private education of Negroes.

School Money Pouring in, Says Faubus

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus said today contributions of money for Little Rock's private school plan were coming in at a "pleasing rate."

But he would not speculate when the private schools would open.

"I can say that nobody is idle," the governor remarked. "Work is being done."

Faubus, who shut the public high schools here to avoid integration, said the Little Rock Private School Corp. might announce an opening date Thursday.

This would be the day after a hearing in St. Louis by three justices of the Eighth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals on the legality of leasing the empty public school buildings to the private corporation.

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People and the Justice Department have asked that such leasing be prohibited.

Faubus said donations to help finance the proposed private segregated schools had come in at such a rapid rate that the First National Bank here, trustee of the fund, had asked for extra help from the private school corporation.

The governor said he personally received a total of $5,600 yesterday.

"The money we're getting now still is coming in unsolicited," he said.

Faubus said it was too early for answers to letters soliciting funds.

The first such letters, bearing the signatures of Faubus and Dr. T. J. Haney, corporation president, were mailed Friday, the governor said.

Faubus said between 50,000 and 100,000 of the letters would be mailed to persons who have written or wired him about the integration controversy. He added that he had received correspondence on the dispute from about a half-million persons.

Corporation officials have not announced a total of contributions received so far. It has been estimated that about $15,000 a week will be required to operate private classes for the approximately 3,000 white high school students here.

No plans are being made for Negro students, whose high school also was closed by Faubus.

Tells North of Future Race Trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — The executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette said last night Negro migration from the South is turning the integration issue into a national issue.

Harry S. Ashmore, Pulitzer prize-winning editor of the Gazette told a Freedom House Dinner:

"If the immediate focus of the root problem is in the South, the larger issue has spread far beyond the region that long counted it as an unhappy monopoly."

"The issue is drawn tonight in New York, in Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, San Francisco, Los Angeles—all the great cities where racial segregation has never been buttressed by law, but continues nevertheless in defiance of law."

And it is here that a nearmajority of America's Negroes now live — and their numbers will increase as social dislocations and economic revolution continue to sweep the Southern people, white and colored off the land and across Mason and Dixon's Line.

"The statement of this fact does nothing to absolve the South of past and present sins. It does, however, emphasize the need for all of us, North and South, to take a new look at the nature of the American dilemma and recognize the ironic truth, that in many practical ways the great redistribution of our Negro population is reducing the South's problem while it increases the nation's."

"Everywhere in this country the rising aspirations of individual Negroes are running counter to the white community's devotion to the status."

Ashmore was one of three Gazette executives honored with the 1953 Freedom Award of Freedom House for their support of law and order in the Little Rock integration crisis. The others were J.N. Helskell, president and editor of the newspaper, and Hugh B. Patterson Jr., publisher.

Hammingsfold said his Soviet rival then could sound out governments that might plan for "the possibility of having to provide promptly — on an emergency basis, on specific appeal from the United Nations — men and material" for a specific U.N. operation.

On another front, U.N. members pledge money today to funds to raising 100 million dollars to help underdeveloped nations improve their lot.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont), a U.S. delegate to the General Assembly, promised 38 million dollars in advance of the special pledging conference. Soviet Delegate G. P. Arkadyev said the Soviet Union also would contribute but didn't say how much.

The Assembly authorized a 50 million-dollar fund to help the underdeveloped nations train technicians and plan large-scale development projects.

The other 50 million dollar program is the U.N.'s regular technical assistance program, which provides specialists to advise local farmers, businessmen and others.

It just happened that a man Jones lived in the area, so Brannon started giving directions. One woman interrupted to ask if she could go in the house for a drink of water. Brannon said yes.

The other woman then got out of the car and — standing very close — engaged him in conversation. During their talk, she learned he had rheumatism and claimed she could cure it.

The diagnosis ended abruptly when the other woman rejoined them and both women got in the car to leave.

New Plymouths on Display Here Thursday

New bumper-to-bumper and road-to-road styling, new power plants with unprecedented traffic agility which operate ten percent more economically, and a new top-of-the-line series of luxury models head the list of innovations for the 1959 Plymouth. The cars will go on display in dealer showrooms Oct. 16.

The 28 models offered include the new Sport Fury series, which for the first time in the low price field provides swivel front seats as standard equipment. The swivel seats are optional on four other models.

In addition to the Sport Fury in the revised model line up, Plymouth also offers the Fury, the Belvedere and the Savoy series. For the first time, Plymouth has two convertibles, one in each of the Sport Fury and the Belvedere line.

They can be seen Oct. 16 at Nunn-Pentecost Motor Co. here.

President Seeks Vote of Independents

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower apparently is going out after support for Republican independents and voters he calls discerning Democrats.

He hasn't defined exactly what a discerning Democrat is. But congressional candidates from in-party leaders judge from what he has said recently that the President, in his forthcoming personal campaigning, plans some strong appeals to Democrats with conservative leanings.

White House approval of the Republican National Committee has been "pounding away" on the theme that most of the Democrats running for Senate and House seats in the North and West are "left-wing radicals."

Eisenhower himself has suggested that the alternative to electing Republicans may be "radical government."

This strategy obviously has been based on the knowledge that registered Democrats outnumber Republicans in many critical states. Unless some of the independents and conservative Democrats can be lured over to the GOP column, a number of Republican candidates will be in a bad fix.

Eisenhower leaves Friday on a major Western swing which will take him to Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Abilene, Kan.; then after a Denver weekend to Los Angeles, San Francisco and Chicago.

Poll Tax Sales Decline in State

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state's poll tax places probably won't be as crowded next year as they were during this one.

The state auditor's office said yesterday payment of poll taxes is running considerably behind last year's total of 563,978.

With 52 counties reported, the tabulation shows 311,863 poll tax receipts issued. The same 52 counties last year issued 324,533 receipts.

It isn't unusual for poll tax payments to decline in years in which there is no Democratic primary, a spokesman in the auditor's office said.

Pulaski, the state's most populous county is not included in the 52-county tabulation.

Payment of poll tax entitles a qualified resident to vote in elections between Oct. 1 of one year and Sept. 30 of the next.

Veterinarian Found Shot to Death

MEMPHIS (AP)—A 40-year-old veterinarian was found shot to death in a burned-out room of his clinic today. The floor of the room was littered with money, possibly $5,000 worth.

The body of the man, Dr. Gaynor W. Henry, was discovered by four employees who noticed smoke seeping from the room as they arrived for work.

Sheriff's deputies said Henry had been shot near the left eye with a small-caliber bullet. No weapon was found.

Paper money and coins were scattered about the room. Other coins were found in a two-gallon bucket and a gallon jar.

The deputies said they could find no sign of forcible entry.

The body was taken to a hospital for an autopsy.

Fighter Cleared in Death of Prisoner

FORT SMITH (AP)—James Leslie, 22-year-old prize fighter, was cleared yesterday by a Sebastian Circuit Court jury in the death of a prisoner at the City Jail.

Leslie was charged with having killed a man named Spradling, 40, of Fort Smith, who was found dead July 13. Officers said Leslie told them he struck Spradling after the man abused him.

At the time, the prisoner was being held in a burglary investigation, but no charges ever were filed in the case.

Spradling's death led to a probe of jail conditions of the Sebastian County Grand Jury. The panel recommended several changes in the handling of prisoners at Fort Smith Jail.

for which is being promoted by the University of Oklahoma.

Swivel Front Seats on 1959 Plymouth

A major development in automobile seating arrangements is the introduction of swivel front seats in the 1959 Plymouth. Driver and front seat passenger can now pivot the seats outward when entering or leaving the car. Each seat pivots independently of the other. The seats swivel when a lever is lifted in the seat shield, releasing a spring which swings the seat outward on rollers a full 40 degrees. The seats automatically lock in place when returned to normal position. An arm rest between the driver and front seat passenger may be folded back when three persons wish to ride in the front seat.

DOROTHY DIX

It's Open Season On Domestic Dear

Dear Dorothy Dix:
I am in a really hopeless position. I'm 25 and have finally met a man who appeals to me. He's definitely unattached, a professional man, good looking, intelligent and shares many enthusiasms with me. It would be no trouble at all to fall in love with him. But unfortunately we met casually under circumstances that aren't likely to recur. Unless I made a big impression on him (which I doubt) we'll never meet again. I'm bitter about the unfairness of it all. If I were a man I could create a friendship. I could let him see I admire him without being brazen. As a woman, I can't do a thing. I know I'd be good for him, too. I have contacts that would help him. I have a little money that could help him get established. I'm considered an excellent hostess and good cook. I think we'd make an ideal couple; instead we will never even get to know each other. Don't you think it's unfair?

— Connie

Dear Connie: Yes, it is, but I think you're viewing the situation too pessimistically. Nature made man the pursuer, all right, but also equipped woman with a scheming mind to stalk her prey and make him think he's the victor. You're a talented, capable, intelligent woman. Put your brain to work. The circumstance of your one meeting could be made to happen again. There must be one mutual friend, a common meeting ground, a shared enthusiasm that can produce results. Do some thinking, girl, and you'll find a way. Happy hunting.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
Never has there been a stronger bulwark in a mother's staying home with her children than I. For years I had no family and when God blessed us with a daughter...

Alma Man Indicted for Manslaughter

VAN BUREN, Ark. (AP)—Albert Kinsey, 58, of Alma, was named in a grand jury manslaughter indictment returned here yesterday.

The indictment by the Crawford county grand jury was made in connection with the fatal shooting of Billy Stephens, 21, at Alma Sept. 23.

The jury also returned a no true bill.

I was determined to stay home and take care of her. It's not so easy. One small salary just won't cover our living expenses and I'm forced to help out. I'd like to do something at home if I can. I've been told that you have some ideas for home work. Will you give them to me? — Clara

Dear Clara: Many mothers are finding the going tough on one salary and have found ways to earn additional income without leaving home. For my leaflet on "Turn Your Spare Time Into Cash," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me. I'm constantly adding to the list as new ideas come up. I'm sure one of them will fit your capabilities.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
I'm 18, attractive, and have no trouble getting boys to like me. Trouble is they don't stay that way. They get the wrong impression of me because I have a very loud voice. I like to joke and kid around. I'm afraid I have a reputation for being too forward — Bonnie

Dear Bonnie: A loud voice can be toned down. Pick out someone who is regularly on radio or TV. Copy her voice and by constant practice you'll get rid of your own raucous one. Or if you prefer not doing it yourself, find a speech class or a private teacher. You might even buy a set of records made for speech improvement. They cost about $10.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
I like Perry very much but I do have one problem with him. I can't get him interested in anything. I do all the talking when we're on a date. In a crowd he's all right, but on the phone he's a pain. — Shelley

Dear Shelley: Give it, girl. This is the pattern Perry will always follow. He blossoms in company but dies like a fading petunia before a party of one. If you can adjust to his peculiarity, keep him. If not, toss him back to the hay mound.

Space Probers Have Gained Confidence

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. space probes are more confident than ever that they can reach the moon. They may try again early next month.

Although no official date has been set for a new moon shot, there were reports that the next rocket may be launched at Cape Canaveral, Fla., between Nov. 8 and 11. During that period, the moon will swing closer to earth than at any other time in its 28-day orbit.

The Air Force directed last weekend's spectacular shot which sent Pioneer—the first moonbound rocket to clear the earth's atmosphere—70,120 miles into space. After losing speed, Pioneer turned back and disintegrated in the atmosphere over the South Pacific early Monday.

Maj. Gen. Bethard A. Schriever, chief of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, said he could not disclose just when another rocket would be sent aloft. But he added: "I can assure you we're not going to waste any time."

In a Los Angeles dispatch, the New York Times said the Air Force is reported to have received authority for two additional space probes early next year. One, the newspaper said, may be an attempt to obtain scientific data in the vicinity of Venus.

Venus and the earth come within 20 million miles of each other in the closest approach of their orbits around the sun.

Pioneer soared one-third of the distance to the moon, which at the near point of its circles is about 221,500 miles away.

The Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency said it instructed the Air Force some time ago to provide two Thor-Able rocket combinations for some unspecified future investigation.

bill-mopping no action will be taken in connection with a reported incident at a high school near Van Buren.

Details on the alleged incident were not available but an official said it had no racial overtones.

The jury was called into session Monday by Circuit Judge Carl Creekmore and ended its work yesterday.

World Mourns Farwell to Pope Pius

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower joined hundreds of other mourners in a farewell tribute to Pope Pius XII today at a pontifical Requiem Mass in St. Matthew's Cathedral.

At the solemn rites in the crowded church were Cabinet members, other top government officials, members of Congress, and the diplomatic corps, together with richly robed members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy and scores of priests and nuns.

Eisenhower was accompanied by the three representatives he has designated to attend services for the Pope in Rome Sunday. They are Secretary of State Dulles, Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, former ambassador to Italy, and John A. McCone, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The President escorted Mrs. Luce to a front-row pew on the left side of the aisle. A few feet away, just outside the sanctuary rail, was a symbolic catafalque, draped in black with a white cross and the dead Pope's coat of arms. On either side were three lighted candles.

The Pope was eulogized by Archbishop Patrick O'Boyle of Washington as a martyr for peace, a foremost leader in the fight against communism, a foe of racial discrimination, and "a great shepherd who gave his life for his flock."

On leaving, Eisenhower was escorted to his car by Archbishop O'Boyle. They chatted quietly on the sidewalk for a moment, and the President told the archbishop: "It was a very great honor."

Chapter XXXIII

Carlotta held the gun in both hands, pointing it at Lane. "Joachim isn't dead. He's at the Four-Arrow. Find Dr. Brewer and ask him," he said. Her expression changed to one of hope.

John Lane learned something at this moment—a six-shooter wasn't the final answer. He had a six-gun, fully loaded, with an extra box of cartridges, but he couldn't use it. Even if he were low down enough to shoot this girl, even if his conscience would permit such a thing, it would avail him nothing. He would die anyway. This town would hang him. Even the guards would help do it.

she had backed close enough to the bars for Lane to seize a fistful of her clothes. He jerked her against the steel door. Her gun exploded, but Lane never knew where the slug went. He had his hands full of Mexican wildcat. Carlotta cursed him. Lane had her by both arms when the guards rushed in. They took the gun and Carlotta stepped back and spat at Lane. "I hate you!"

"Go now, lady," a guard ordered sternly. The corridor began filling with people. Irma rushed in, Mrs. Erwin behind her, and asked excitedly: "What were those shots? John, are you all right?"

"Yeah," The guards explained. Irma said to the Mexican girl then, "No, no. You're all wrong. Joachim isn't dead, and isn't going to die. Do Brewer said, I've come to take you out to the ranch, Carlotta, so you can help take care of him."

Carlotta said, "I will go with you." Sheriff Cole's voice sounded, officially aggressive. "Clear out, let me through." He came along the corridor. He had a county gun belt and holstered gun in one hand and a carbine in the other. He told one of the men near Lane's cell, "Hold these." He got his keys to open the door. "Lane, ain't your saddle got a scabbard on it?"

"Yeah." "Get your hat, the sheriff said. "Get your vest on. Bring that bottle if it ain't empty."

Lane turned back to get his belongings, putting O'Meara's gun in his waistband. Cole said to the sodbusters, "You fellows can go to bed now. Won't be anything else doing around here. I'll be back some time tomorrow and settle up with you."

"Turning Lane loose, Sheriff?" "No," Sole said, "but I am to use him for a while." He motioned Lane into the corridor and toward the rear. Outside, he handed Lane the gun belt and the carbine, and dug a spare box of cartridges out of a pocket. "Hope you don't need them, but you better have them."

"What's happened?" Lane asked. "We're going wolf hunting. Lane, let's saddle up."

They entered the corral. When they brought their saddled horses out of the lot, the womenfolk were standing nearby in the moonlight. Irma moved toward Lane. She said, "John, you be careful," in a tone that told Lane she knew where he and Cole were going. The girl lifted her arms, as though for an embrace.

Clutching her shoulder, Tom Cole turned her roughly away from her foreman. He told her, "If you want to kiss somebody goodby, do it to me. I'm your man." He took Irma into his arms and kissed her, and she was surprised to resist even if she had wanted to.

Lane was thinking that Cole figured he was in love with Karen and didn't intend for Lane to have Karen and Irma both.

Cole and Lane passed along the street. This was the road to the nestler settlement on Fortuna Creek, to the Four-Arrow ranch and to the Quarter-Circle M. Cole said, "You was right about Louis. He ain't no good." "Are we on his trail now?" "Yeah. He found out you had Verdugo at the Four-Arrow and he's afraid the Mexican will talk. Him and Corday and Rudnik and three others are on their way out there, intending to get Verdugo."

Lane said sarcastically, "They intend to ride right in there and get him—six men?" "They'll kill Verdugo. Or try to."

Judgment Appealed to Supreme Court

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Claude B. Brinton, Jonesboro lawyer, today appealed to the Arkansas Supreme Court a judgment of $37.50 imposed for non-payment of a city occupation tax.

"Scharr didn't tell you his plans, did he?" Louis wanted Jess to go along. Jess didn't like the idea of killing the Mexican. That's why he's got it in for you, Lane—because you shot Verdugo."

"Under the same conditions," Lane said, "I'd shoot Boucault, too." He rolled a smoke. "When Scharr and I were together at the Four-Arrow corral, he bragged to me about killing Draper."

"I don't doubt it, Lane. Karen thinks Louis is guilty. If he ain't, why is he afraid of what Verdugo will say?" (To Be Continued)

Distinction and Beauty in COMPLETELY RESTYLED CHEVY

Chevrolet again offers the popular Bel Air series in 1959. This model maintains its reputation for stylish interiors and appointments, with increased passenger room and additional visibility in the compound-curved windshield and larger rear windows. New grille and lowered headlamps accent the front end. Both two-door and four-door sedans incorporate the venture, some new design features, plus improved brakes, suspension system and handling advancements. All 1959 Chevrolets feature a new acrylic lacquer finish said to retain brightness for years.

Chevrolet to Show New Autos Thurs.

A complete transformation, along with more safety, comfort and performance, was announced today for the 1959 Chevrolet passenger car line.

The cars, which will be displayed at nationwide dealer showings on Thursday, Oct. 16, represent one of the most imaginative designs ever to come from the automobile industry.

In shape, and in detail, the new styling reflects the influence of a space conscious age. Lines sweep rearward in a virtually level plane. Tops are flatter and visibility is dramatically increased.

Appreciably lower, the overall appearance of fleetness is further conveyed by an adroitly sculptured front area. At the rear, horizontal wings branch out from the center of the deck in a simulation of mobility that might have been conceived on the sands of Cape Canaveral. The new cars can be seen Thursday at Young Chevrolet Co. here.

Pink Boll Worms Spread in State

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Pink boll worms were found in two Central Arkansas counties—Faulkner and White—over the weekend.

The discovery caused concern by federal and state officials who are trying to control the destructive pest.

The worms were in trash taken from cotton gins at Conway and El Paso, the latter in White County.

Neither county is in the 29-county quarantine area of southwest and west central Arkansas.

Previously the pink bollworm had turned up in eight counties inside the quarantine area.

Federal and state spokesmen said additional funds and equipment would be sought to aid in controlling the pest.

BUGS WANTED

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Park Supt. Jim Clary said he gets odd requests frequently, but a recent one stumped him.

The School of Tropical Medicine, Loma Linda, Calif., asked him for a shipment of bed bugs.

Likes Planes But They Still Bother Him

By SAUL PETT
For Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—I like airplanes but:

I don't like the noise, the vibration, the sense of constantly rushing and of course, the sense of nothing between you and the ground. As far as I can tell, man has gained nothing from the age of flight except the ability to go some place he can't afford.

You can now get from here to there in half the time it takes to claim your luggage.

Airplanes can be uncomfortable. For example:

I can never seem to find the little ash tray on the end of the arm rest. I always seem to grind out my cigarette on my knee.

I think the trays and the silverware and packets of salt and pepper and salad dressing they serve on airplanes are awfully cute, and my kids have enjoyed them for a long time. But I think the meals served on most airplanes are overly ambitious, overly cooked and overrated. Why, when meals have to be cooked many hours in advance, why do so many airlines insist on serving steak? The steak is so leathery it ought to have a baggage check on it.

I find the stewardesses charming and efficient and solicitous, like hospital nurses wheeling you up to surgery. Instead of these Florence Nightingales, I would prefer the old type of railroad conductor who collected your ticket with a snarl, consulted a huge old

No Permission Is Needed for Drive-in LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The attorney general's office says the Citizens Bank of Jonesboro won't have to get approval of the state Bank Commission to erect a drive-in window linked to the bank by a tunnel.

The drive-in window is an extension of the bank and not a branch office, Asst. Atty. Gen. Bill J. Davis ruled yesterday.

The bank asked for the opinion before starting work on the drive-in installation.

In the table of measures, a tray (a word seldom used in modern times) is one pound or twelve ounces.

watch drawn from his blue serge vest, and then, without a word, retreated to the back of the car to read somebody else's newspapers.

I don't find the announcements made over the PA system by the pilot informative, interesting, or reassuring because I can rarely hear them over the static. Besides, he's always announcing Chattanooga on our left when I'm on the right.

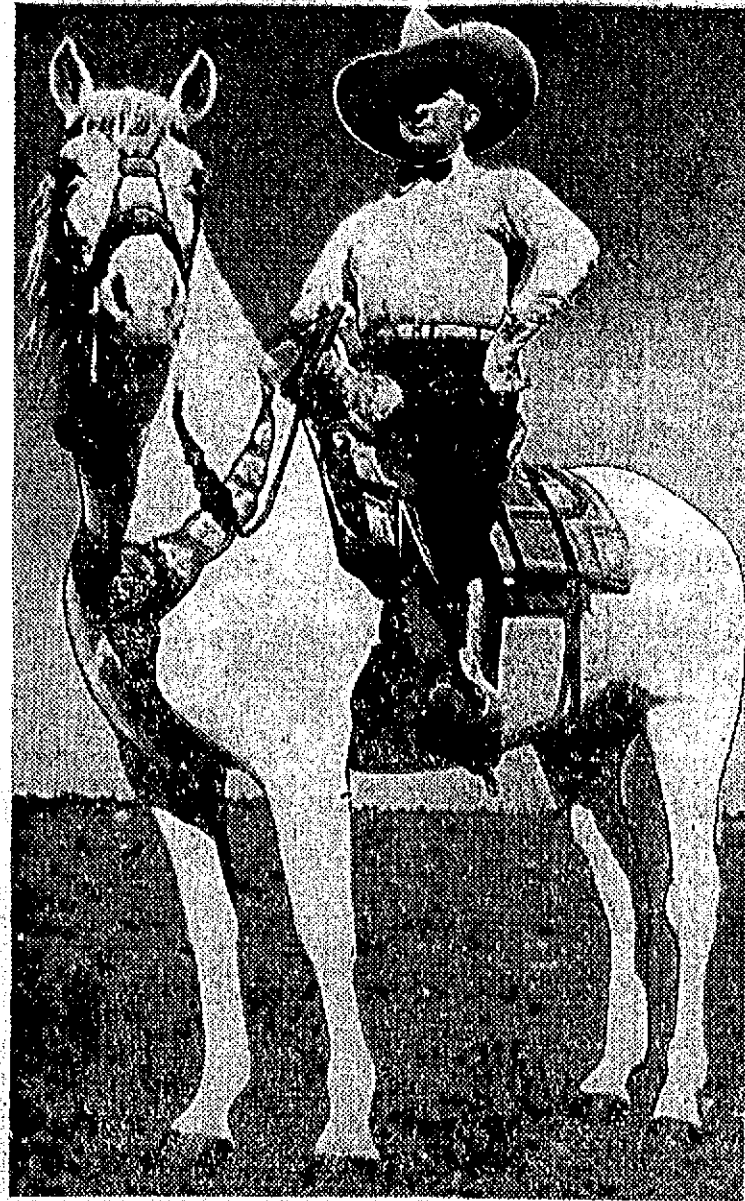

And why is it that the pilot always sounds like that old Armageddon voice of the "March of Time" man when he starts: "Now don't get alarmed. We are about to switch engines into a higher speed level. It will seem of a second or two like the engines are stopping, but..."

Until then I wasn't alarmed. Why doesn't the big mouth, tend to his knitting and keep quiet?

Least of all am I reassured when I buy air insurance at one of those little counters they have at airports. After pressing me for details on amount of coverage, next of kin and beneficiary, the lady then wishes me, in tones of a mortuary: "A pleasant safe flight."

Somewhat I always suspect her interest is more commercial than personal.

Jonesboro Seeks Air Transportation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spokesmen for Jonesboro, Ark., today told the Civil Aeronautics Board that air transportation is needed between Jonesboro, Little Rock and St. Louis.

Jonesboro businessmen testified before CAB examiner Joseph L. Fitzmaurice as the Washington phase of hearings in the Oklahoma-Kansas local air service case. The case involves proposals of several air lines for extension of some routes in Oklahoma and Kansas and parts of adjoining states, for revision of some present routes and for new stops.

Most of the witnesses from the area's cities testified at hearings held by the examiner in the field last summer. The airlines will present their testimony later.

Neal Thayer, manager of the Jonesboro Water and Light Plant and airport manager, said there is a need for scheduled Jonesboro-Little Rock-St. Louis service. He noted that Trans-Texas Airways proposes to extend its route from Little Rock to St. Louis and to include Jonesboro as a stop.

Thayer testified that considerable time is required to travel by automobile or other methods of transportation to Memphis airport. He added that the growing economy of the Jonesboro area makes air transportation an increasing necessity.

He expressed belief the community would be willing to waive airport rental fees while operations got started.

J. C. Deacon, president of the Jonesboro Chamber of Commerce, estimated that at least 6,000 passengers a year would use commercial air service between Jonesboro, Little Rock and St. Louis.

Harry W. Alberstein, St. Louis shoe manufacturer whose firm has a factory in Jonesboro, said he believes a large portion of some

Education Board to Discuss Budget

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Board of Education called a session today to consider an $8 million dollar budget for the next two years.

The budget calls for 44 million dollars for each year, including funds for public schools, the Arkansas Library Commission and the Teacher Retirement System.

2,400 trips a year made by persons in connection with the shoe business in the area, would be made by plane under proposed schedules. He added that a considerable quantity of goods is shipped by air cargo.

Amateur Reports Another Sputnik

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Is there a new electronic voice in the sky? Sputnik No. 4.

"It's a new satellite," says amateur radio operator Elmo Mellon, "or else some mighty weird things are happening."

The 59-year-old Mellon said he heard a new signal Tuesday night at intervals of 100, 105 and 117 minutes. Mellon, who listens all night mostly for Sputnik No. 3, insists it is a new signal. "Sputnik 3 sounds like a slow letter A," he said. "This one resembles a fast T about four dashes a second."

He said he first heard the radio signal Monday morning and it paraded through his receiver. The Naval Research Laboratory in Washington said it had not received any new signals.

Mellon said one of Tuesday night's signals came two minutes after the expected "beep" of Sputnik III. The signal comes in on the same frequency as Sputnik III—20,000 megacycles, he said.

Special Notice

Anyone interested are asked to attend a meeting Thursday, Oct. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at Yerger High School for the purpose of organizing a Tiger Booster's Club.

There is a great need for such an organization in Hope. Other towns and schools have them, so should we. I feel that we owe this much to our boys who are giving their all to try to hold up the reputation we once had.

There has been much criticism about the team this year as to why they are making such a poor showing.

Anyone interested in helping the boys, will meet with us Thursday night. This meeting will answer many of your questions.

Matter of Fact
When the seed-bearing pods of the Para rubber tree open, they crack open with a loud noise. They open with such force that the seeds are sometimes thrown 100 feet away from the tree. Rubber growers believe the "explosion" of the pods and the resulting scattering of seeds is nature's way of getting the seeds out of the shadow of the mother tree and into the sunlight.

News Briefs

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Pulaski Circuit Judge J. Mitchell Cockrell has affirmed another property assessment against the Kansas City Southern Lines, the third in three months. Judge Cockrell yesterday signed an order upholding the 1957 assessment of $4,330,680 fixed for the railroad by the state Assessment Co-ordination Department, which was supported by the Judge in its 1955 and 1956 assessments.

LEPANTO, Ark. (AP)—Patricia Herndon, 17, has been named Miss Lepanto to reign over the annual American Legion Terrapin Derby here tomorrow. She will receive her crown from Jimmy Vance, the 1957 queen, after a parade.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Foundation of Associated Colleges announced yesterday it has received a $4,000 contribution from The Crossett Co. at Crossett. The firm contributed $1,000 to the Foundation last July.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The attorney general's office yesterday read out write-in votes in cities of the first class. In opinions going to Fayetteville, and officials, the office said write-in votes couldn't be counted and a 1955 act concerning write-ins did not repeal a 1935 act.

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP)—By a 17-vote margin, voters yesterday rejected a proposed $1,300,000 bond issue for sewer improvements. The vote was 1,283 for and 1,300 against.

Production, Housing Slows Down a Bit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Recovery from the recession slowed down a bit last month on two vital fronts—industrial production and housing. But the statistics showed continued improvement. The output of factories and mines advanced one point last month on the Federal Reserve Board's seasonally adjusted index of industrial production. This put the index at 137.7 per cent of the 1947-49 average, in what the board described as the smallest monthly increase since production began rising from the recession low of 126 per cent in April. The index figure for August originally was set at 137 also but the board said this was revised downward to 136. For August of last year the index hit a 1957 high of 145.

The board attributed part of the smallness of the September production increase to work stoppages and model changeovers in the automobile industry.
